EXHIBIT I-12

Frozen Warmwater Shrimp from Ecuador, India, Indonesia, and Vietnam

Scope of Investigations

The scope of these investigations includes certain frozen warmwater shrimp and prawns whether wild-caught (ocean harvested) or farm-raised (produced by aquaculture), head-on or head-off, shell-on or peeled, tail-on or tail-off,¹ deveined or not deveined, cooked or raw, or otherwise processed in frozen form.

The frozen warmwater shrimp and prawn products included in the scope, regardless of definitions in the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States (HTSUS), are products which are processed from warmwater shrimp and prawns through freezing and which are sold in any count size.

The products described above may be processed from any species of warmwater shrimp and prawns. Warmwater shrimp and prawns are generally classified in, but are not limited to, the Penaeidae family. Some examples of the farmed and wild-caught warmwater species include, but are not limited to, whiteleg shrimp (Penaeus vannamei), banana prawn (Penaeus merguensis), fleshy prawn (Penaeus chinensis), giant river prawn (Macrobrachium rosenbergii), giant tiger prawn (Penaeus monodon), redspotted shrimp (Penaeus brasiliensis), southern brown shrimp (Penaeus subtilis), southern pink shrimp (Penaeus notialis), southern rough shrimp (Trachypenaeus curvirostris), southern white shrimp (Penaeus schmitti), blue shrimp (Penaeus stylirostris), western white shrimp (Penaeus occidentalis), and Indian white prawn (Penaeus indicus).

Frozen shrimp and prawns that are packed with marinade, spices or sauce are included in the scope. In addition, food preparations, which are not “prepared meals,” that contain more than 20 percent by weight of shrimp or prawn are also included in the scope.

Excluded from the scope are: (1) breaded shrimp and prawns (HTSUS subheading 1605.20.10.20); (2) shrimp and prawns generally classified in the Pandalidae family and commonly referred to as coldwater shrimp, in any state of processing; (3) fresh shrimp and prawns whether shell-on or peeled (HTSUS subheadings 0306.36.0020 and 0306.36.0040); (4) shrimp and prawns in prepared meals (HTSUS subheading 1605.20.05.10); (5) dried shrimp and prawns; (6) canned warmwater shrimp and prawns (HTSUS subheading 1605.20.10.40); (7) certain dusted shrimp; and (8) certain battered shrimp. Dusted shrimp is a shrimp-based product: (1) that is produced from fresh (or thawed-from-frozen) and peeled shrimp; (2) to which a “dusting” layer of rice or wheat flour of at least 95 percent purity has been applied; (3) with the entire surface of the shrimp flesh thoroughly and evenly coated with the flour; (4) with the non-shrimp content of the end product constituting between four and 10 percent of the product’s total weight after being dusted, but prior to being frozen; and (5) that is subjected to IQF freezing immediately after application of the dusting layer. Battered shrimp is a shrimp-based product that, when dusted in accordance with the definition of dusting above, is coated with a wet viscous layer containing egg and/or milk, and par-fried.

The products covered by the scope are currently classified under the following HTSUS subheadings: 0306.17.0004, 0306.17.0005, 0306.17.0007, 0306.17.0008, 0306.17.0010, 0306.17.0011, 0306.17.0013, 0306.17.0014, 0306.17.0016, 0306.17.0017, 0306.17.0019, 0306.17.0020, 0306.17.0022, 0306.17.0023, 0306.17.0025, 0306.17.0026, 0306.17.0028, 0306.17.0029, 0306.17.0041, 0306.17.0042, 1605.21.1030, and 1605.29.1010. These HTSUS subheadings are provided for convenience and for customs purposes only and are not dispositive, but rather the written description of the scope is dispositive.

seafood business news from beneath the surface

With wholesalers 'still full of inventory,' US shrimp import volumes continue to tumble: UnderCurrent News

December 12, 2022

'The inventory has to get worked through before business gets back to normal and the inventory hasn't been worked through yet' — James Gulkin, Siam Canadian Group

Nick Sambides Jr.: UnderCurrent News

The US shrimp import market steepened its decline in October despite its proximity to a holiday season that the seafood industry hopes will bail it out at least somewhat.

US importers took in 69,767 metric tons of shrimp worth $633.99 million in October 2022, compared to 85,478t worth $808.2m in October 2021 — a whopping 18% decline in volume and 22% drop in value, according to the latest seafood trade data posted by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

It marked the third straight month of year-on-year reductions.

The US now is on pace to finish the year with 2% less imported shrimp than it did in 2021, though it also looks to end with slightly higher total sales. Based on NOAA data, the US imported 715,711t of shrimp worth $6.7 billion between January and October, compared to the 729,667t worth $6.4bn imported during the first 10 months of 2021.

James Gulkin, the CEO and founder of Siam Canadian Group, a leading shrimp exporter, told Undercurrent News that he sees a couple of variables in the trend.

"The US is still full of inventory. Sales are slow for food service. Sales are slow for retail. Importers have drastically slowed down. Retailers have slowed down. Retailers are asking for delays on shipments to some degree," he told Undercurrent News. "The inventory has to get worked through before business gets back to normal and the inventory hasn't been worked through yet. There's still inventory there, higher-priced inventory."

Monthly volume, Jan 2013 -

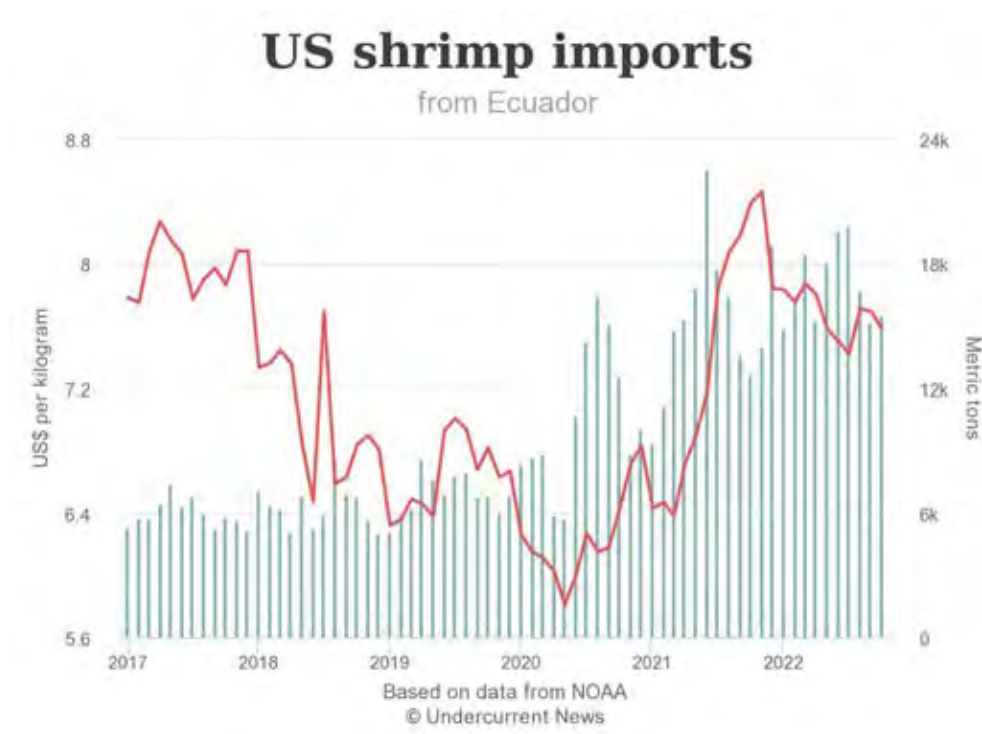

The holiday seasons that stretch into spring might diminish a vast amount of that inventory, but that doesn't look likely, said Henry DelaLlana, a senior director of procurement at Chicken of the Sea Frozen Foods of California.

"We've still got Christmas going on. We've still got the Super Bowl [Feb. 12] going on and Lent for 40 days [Feb. 22 to April 6] so we're hoping that the holidays deplete a large portion of this inventory, but that's a hope," he said. "That's not really a fact."

And if the word of Nikhilesh Alluri, executive director of India's Avanti Frozen Foods, is any indicator, next month's numbers will not be an improvement. As Undercurrent has reported, he told callers during a recent investor conference call that demand in the US remains "very weak."

"The customers in the US, the larger retailers [and] foodservice companies, are sitting on lots of inventory. So, we need to see how fast they clear their inventory. And then, when they're able to, we'll be able to send out more products," Alluri said in discussing his company's second-quarter results.

Ecuador still rising

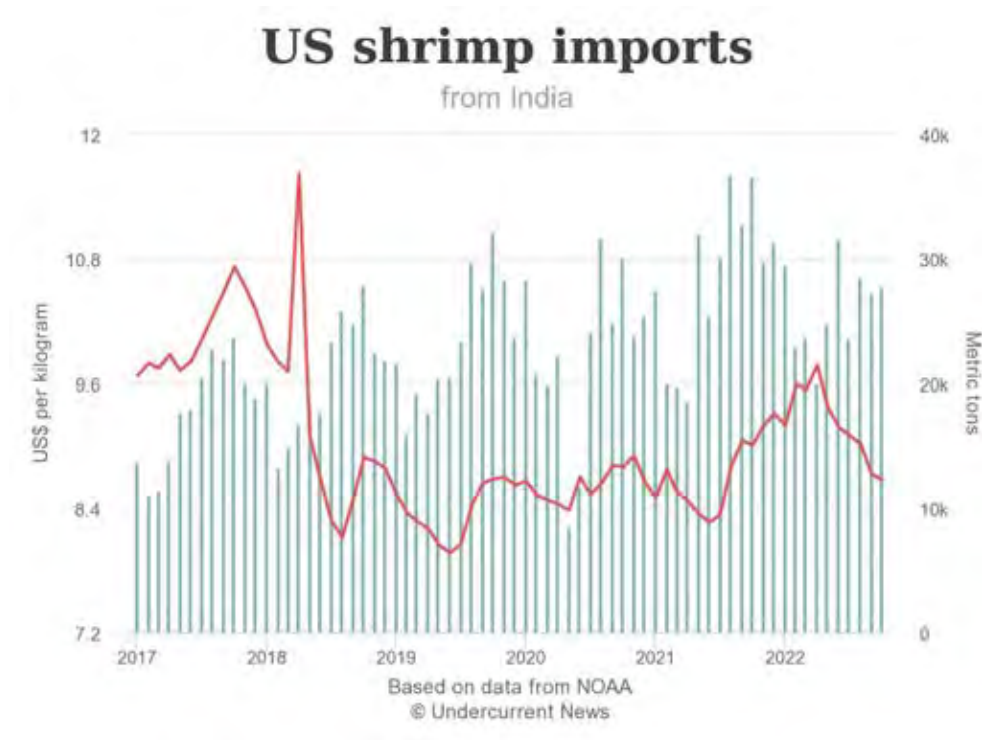

The US' biggest source of shrimp, India, sent it 27,261t worth $236.44m in October 2022 compared to 36,718t worth $331.05m, a 26% decline in volume and a 29% decline in value compared to October 2021.

The value drop is the second-highest behind only Vietnam, which saw a 41% decline from $103.34m to $60.82m.

During the first 10 months of the year, India sent the US 259,273t worth $2.4bn, a 7% drop in volume and a nearly exact match with its performance during the first 10 months of 2021 when it sent the US 279,980t worth $2.4bn.

India's monthly US volume decline dovetails with predictions that the country's shrimp production in 2022 could drop by as much as 200,000t y-o-y, from 850,000t in 2021 to 650,000-700,000t by Dec. 31, due to the recession and inflation in the US. India also has unique problems — an "unprecedented crisis" of farmers threatening a crop holiday as prices dive, as Undercurrent has reported.

But there is an outlier among the biggest importers: Ecuador.

The country that recently rose to become the second-largest source of shrimp for the US, overtaking Indonesia, continued its streak of y-o-y improvements in October with a 22% increase in volume and 11% gain in value. Its y-o-y increases the month before were 11% in volume and 4% in value.

How is this possible? Despite the market's doldrums, Ecuadorian exporters to the US continue to ramp up production while their prices to wholesalers have actually "dropped considerably," Gulkin said.

Their "pricing of shrimp is much cheaper now than it was three months ago, six months ago," he said. "They're expecting well over a million tons this year. And by 2025 they're talking about 2 million tons. Ecuador is picking up and being very competitive. How sustainable that is, I don't know, but for now they're very sharp in, in price and they've got increasing volume."

"India's had difficulties — increasing costs on feed, increasing costs on control volume products, oil, et cetera, disease issues. India's been really challenged and Ecuador has become very efficient, so they've been able to increase production and become more efficient on their production," Gulkin said.

Lesser exporters of shrimp getting hit hard

With the exception of Mexico (6%) and Peru (11%), the rest of the top producers of US-imported shrimp have endured declines in volume and value. Vietnam's aforementioned 41% drop comes despite more general success in seafood.

As Undercurrent has reported, Vietnam's seafood exports for 2022 had exceeded $10bn in sales as of November, an all-time high since it joined the global market more than 20 years ago.

The steepest year-on-year declines in October came from the 22 countries below the top 10 list.

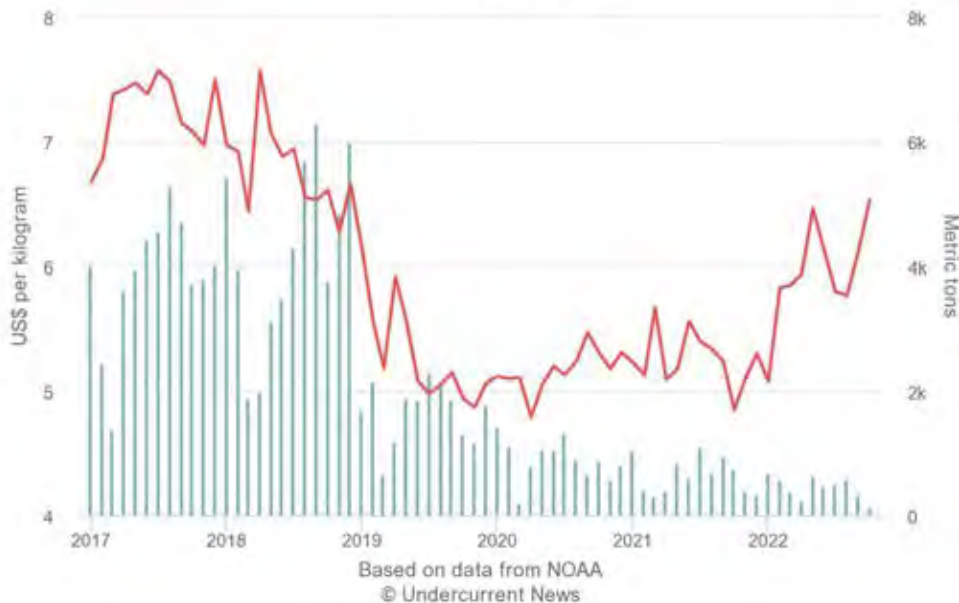

Combined they sent 54% less shrimp into the US than they did a year ago and received 40% less in value, too: 861t worth $8.87m.

>"A smaller producer who doesn't have those scale of economies [of the largest shrimp exporting countries] will be hard-pressed to be competitive," Gulkin said.

Consumer prices might not decline soon

Given the dramatic slowdown of imports, consumers might expect to see what for them will be big declines in retail sale prices, particularly with Christmas and New Year’s closing in, but that’s actually more difficult to predict than one might think, Gulkin said.

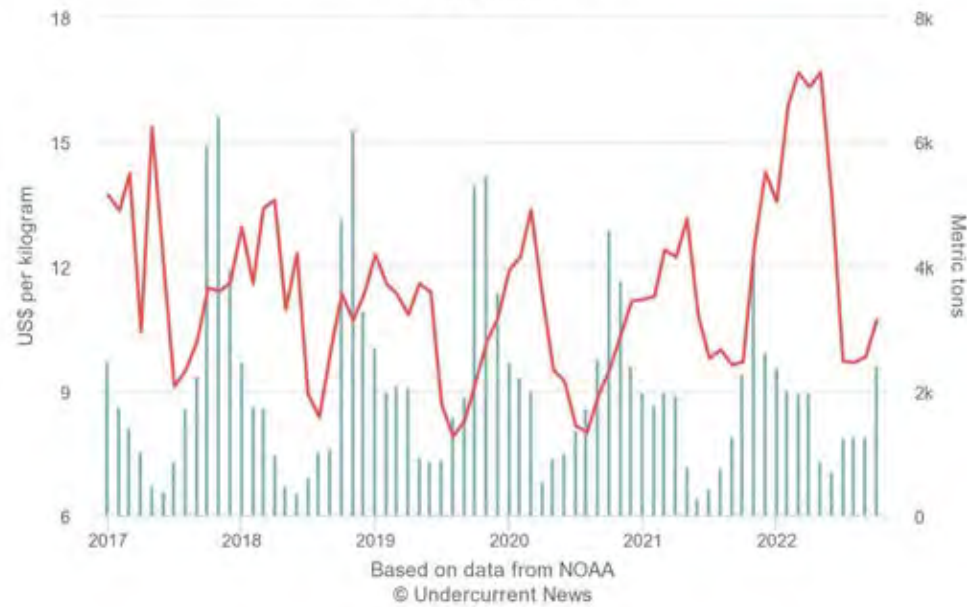

The great majority of shrimp imports are frozen and secure in cold storage, so there isn’t necessarily a great urgency to get the product to move at disadvantageous prices, especially since most wholesalers bought shrimp this year based on 2021 estimates, DelaLlana said.

And, as Undercurrent has written, 2021 was a year so spectacularly good for shrimp consumption that it qualifies as the market’s greatest-ever year, with 896,109t worth $8.0bn imported, boosts of 20% in volume and 24% in value over what was imported in 2020.

"These are previous bookings. This is not booking on low-cost inventory. They [harvesters and wholesalers] still will have that markup that they paid and they want to put it out there [recoup it from consumers], so Joe Shopper will still see a price that's pretty inflated compared to what we're seeing right now," DelaLlana said. "Unless the retailers start promoting heavily so that they can move the inventory out, Joe Shopper is still going to see prices that are conducive with what was bought for this season."

"As we get to lower-cost replacements, then that's when the prices will start dropping," he added.

Will product forms change due to the market glut?

Product forms won't likely change much this holiday season, Gulkin said. DelaLlana disagreed.

"I think you'll tend to see more larger shrimp in the market, more larger shrimp coming into restaurants," Gulkin said. "When prices drop, restaurant sales usually increase because they like to have larger shrimp, especially white tablecloth restaurants or let's say your upper end of the family, casual type restaurants where they like to promote larger shrimp."

DelaLlana, meanwhile, sees more value-added products likely to hit the shrimp market, especially ready-to-eat and ready-to-cook meals. A survey by Chicken of the Sea of seafood executives and buyers showed that 40% of them were surprised by consumer interest in those products, he said.

Wholesalers will diversify their shrimp into value-adds "so that we're not at the mercy of just the commodity shrimp" market, DelaLlana said. "Whether the shrimp component of it goes up and down in volatility, we still have other components of that value-added product that are pretty stable."

Gulkin still has hopes for a strong holiday rebound for the market, but said it is more likely that any rebound will be fairly weak.

"This consumer [has a] lack of consumer confidence, worries about inflation, worries about the recession, but inflation is not hitting shrimp. Shrimp are cheap, you know, are going the opposite of other food products in terms of inflation," he said. "The problem really is too much inventory in the states, and also there's still serious logistic problems in the US. Cold storages are full, it is very difficult to get transport, truckers, et cetera. These problems have not loosened up in the States."

acute fishmeal shortage forecast, salmon supply back on track

The second half of 2023 is expected to be the most challenging period for global aquaculture since the peak of the pandemic in 2020 as factors such as demand softening and El Niño are driving fishmeal prices higher, finds a global aquaculture update from Rabobank.

The Asian shrimp industry is facing a challenging period of record-low prices due to oversupply caused by Ecuadorian growth, report the analysts.

The slump in shrimp demand may even get worse in 2H 2023 as Chinese demand softens, they warn.

In fact, 2023 can be seen as a year to forget for the shrimp industry, according to Rabobank.

Salmon prices have largely corrected to more normal levels but remain high compared to historical levels: "After nearly two years of weak supply, salmon will experience a period of more normalized supply starting in H2 2023."

A possible challenge for the salmon industry for the rest of this year will be the shortage of sustainably certified fishmeal and oil, said the aquaculture market specialists.

El Niño conditions caused the cancellation of the first fishing season in Peru, creating an acute fishmeal and fish oil shortage. Aqua feed prices will be supported in H2 2023 due to this scarcity of fishmeal and oil, forecasts the publication.

Regional outlook

South America

Even though Peru's first fishing season was cancelled, market watchers are hopeful that the impact will be contained to one season and a rebound will follow in 2024.

“In 2014, the biomass recovered rapidly and Peru’s subsequent fishing season in 2015 had both a high quota and catch rate. The resulting supply recovery also normalized fish meal prices to levels seen before the cancellation of the fishery,” commented the analysts.

All eyes will be focused on Ecuador and Chile to see how El Niño impacts their respective shrimp and salmon aquaculture industries, added the team.

Ecuadorian producers can expect a challenging H2 not only due to weaker Chinese demand expectations but also the risk of El Niño bringing heavy rains and possible flooding, potentially tempering the record supply growth Ecuador has had so far in 2023, they noted.

Southeast Asia

Asia’s shrimp industry is entering what could be the most challenging period since the outbreak of early mortality syndrome (EMS) in 2011, believe the analysts.

Persistently low prices and high costs have made shrimp farming unprofitable.

“The supply contraction that started in H1 2023 is likely to continue and, at least for India, accelerate as virtually the entire industry is operating at a loss per kilogram sold.”

A stable supply correction is needed to balance the market, said the analysts.

North America

US demand for shrimp remains soft despite low shrimp prices. Current prices of shrimp in the US are at a ten-year low and even below the low point of the 2020 Covid lockdown period.

US salmon prices have normalized from record levels on better Chilean supply. “We do not expect any further price softness for salmon in the US in H2 2023.”

Europe

The European salmon industry is currently the most profitable aquaculture industry in the world. Even with somewhat lower salmon prices in H2 2023, it will still perform strongly, maintains Rabobank.

“The 25% resource tax in Norway is now a reality and will have a negative effect on sector growth, at least in the near term.”

than expected demand has created large frozen inventories.”

El Niño in Peru, and the subsequent fishery closure, will pose an acute challenge for the Chinese aquaculture industry, which sources 50% of its fishmeal from that South American market, according to the outlook.

Trade insights: Ecuador's shrimp export price slumps to lowest level in over a decade

Trade data shows the average unit value of the South American country's frozen shrimp exports fell below the psychological $5.00 per kilogram threshold amid a supply glut and slowing demand

By Louis Harkell | Sept. 25, 2023 18:29 BST

Trade data shows Ecuador's exports of frozen shrimp plummeted to their lowest average price in over a decade in August, falling below the psychological $5.00 per kilogram threshold amid a supply glut and slowing demand.

The average unit value of $4.96/kg last month marked a 23% decline from a year earlier and the cheapest level since 2010, according to the figures released by Ecuador's National Chamber of Aquaculture, or CNA.

While the volume of frozen shrimp exports rose 18% in August versus 2021 to 98,630 metric tons, revenue dropped 8% to $489 million as prices slumped.

China remained Ecuador's top export market despite a 26% plunge in average unit value to $4.59/kg. Shipments to China gained 8% by volume to 54,633t but tumbled 20% in value to $251m.

The US received 18,536t of frozen shrimp in August, up 33% year-on-year. But average price to the US sank 19% to $5.88/kg, limiting value growth to just 7% at $109m.

Monthly volume and average value, Jan 2011 -

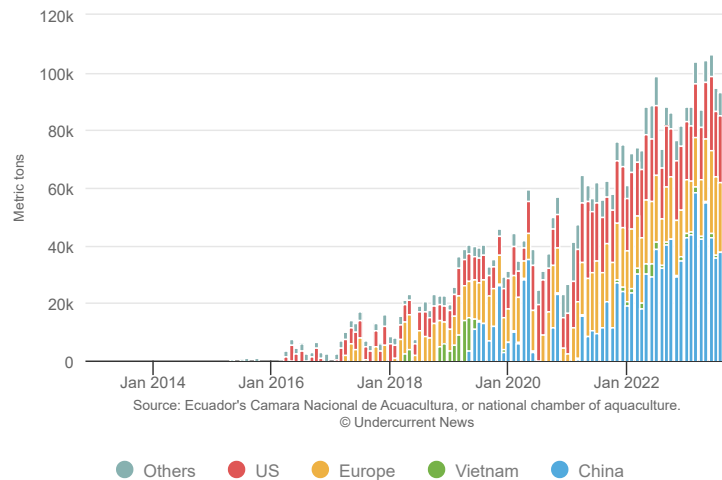

Weaker prices dragged total value down 5% to $4.27 billion between January and August of 2023, compared to the first eight months of 2022. The average unit value declined 17% to $5.31 per kilogram.

China remained Ecuador's top market year-to-date, purchasing 483,496t valued at $2.44bn. Volume to China jumped 29% but a 19% drop in average unit value to $5.05/kg limited value growth to just 5%.

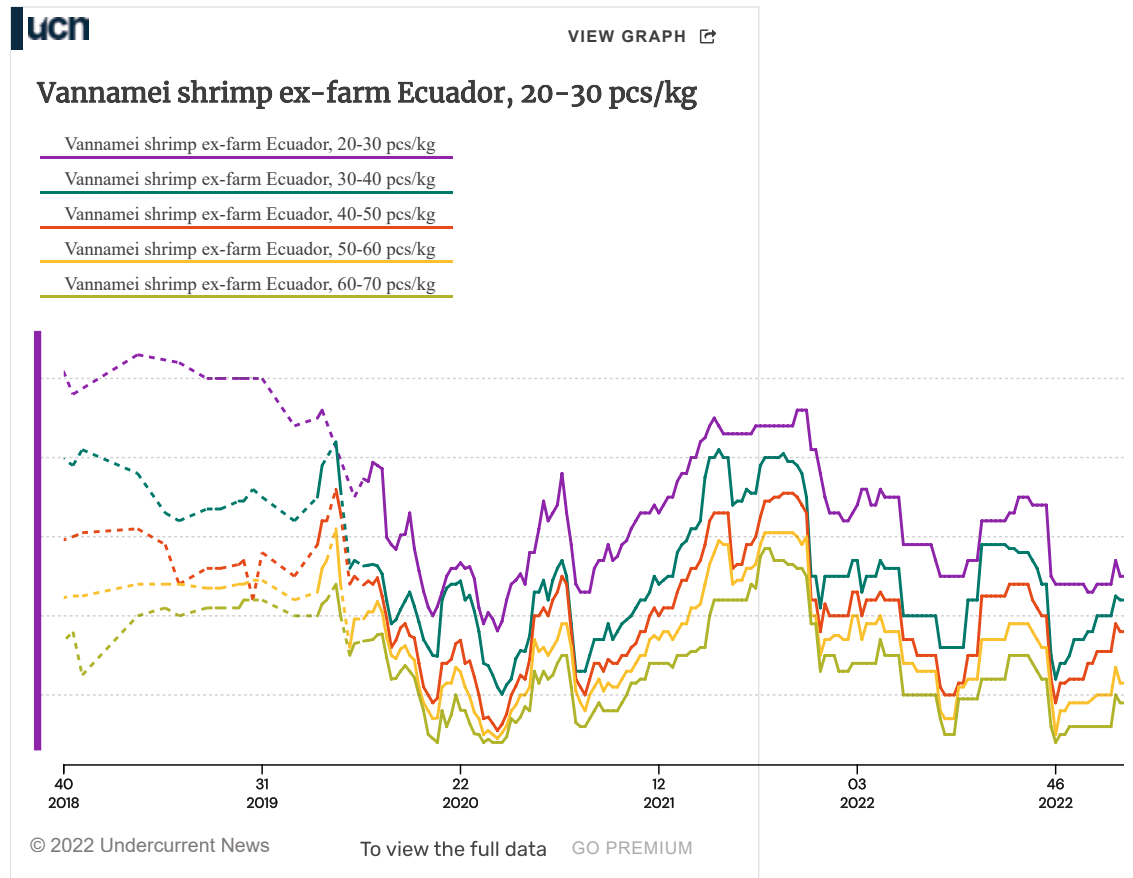

Meanwhile, the US imported 132,541t worth $815m, up 1% by volume but down 13% in value as the average US price decreased 14% to $6.15/kg.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (15 December 2022) — The Asian Development Bank (ADB) has approved a $93 million loan to enhance shrimp farming by smallholder farmers in seven provinces in Indonesia.

The Infrastructure Improvement for Shrimp Aquaculture Project will help the Ministry of Marine Affairs and Fisheries introduce sustainable shrimp aquaculture to boost the productivity, quality, profitability, and environmental sustainability of smallholders' shrimp farming in the provinces of Bali, Banten, Central Java, East Java, Lampung, Nangro Aceh Darusalam, and South Sulawesi.

"Indonesia is a key player in the global shrimp market, ranking among the top five shrimp producers in the world with a global market share of 8.7% and export markets in the European Union, Japan, and the United States," said ADB Principal Water Resources Specialist for Southeast Asia Eric Quincieu. "Through ADB's assistance, we expect that sustainable aquaculture practices will help reduce pressure on the ecosystem while boosting productivity."

The project will improve smallholder farmers' access to quality inputs, production, and post-harvest practices and traceability through investments in climate adaptive infrastructure, capacity building, and strengthening of value chains. The project will also facilitate the transfer of knowledge in producing high-quality genetic shrimp fry to the Ministry of Marine Affairs and Fisheries to reduce reliance on imported brood stock.

About 5,200 smallholder farmers, including more than a thousand women farmers, will benefit from improved infrastructure and capacity. About 35,000 smallholder farmers, of which about 7,000 are women, will benefit from improved access to quality inputs and capacity building programs on sustainable and climate adaptive aquaculture. The project will also contribute to COVID-19 pandemic recovery by providing employment opportunities and promoting rural entrepreneurship.

The project is in line with the government's National Medium-Term Development Plan, 2020–2024 and ADB's country partnership strategy for Indonesia, 2020–2024, and its Action Plan for Healthy Oceans and Sustainable Blue Economies.

ADB is committed to achieving a prosperous, inclusive, resilient, and sustainable Asia and the Pacific, while sustaining its efforts to eradicate extreme poverty. Established in 1966, it is owned by 68 members—49 from the region.

Cargill to "nearly double" its shrimp feed production in Ecuador

Cargill has reached an agreement to expand its shrimp feed production activities in Ecuador, following a deal with Naturisa and Skyvest.

Skyvest's shrimp-feed production facility in Guayaquil, Ecuador © Empagran

Cargill first brought its nutrition formulation expertise to Ecuador in 2015, when it partnered with shrimp-farming company Naturisa to build and operate a shrimp-feed manufacturing facility under the name Aquacargill del Ecuador.

“Since that time, the Ecuadorian shrimp farming industry has continued to grow, and there is a need to meet the increased demand for high-quality feed,” said Helene Ziv-Douki, president of Cargill’s aqua nutrition business, in a press release about the agreement.

Through this new joint venture with Skyvest, Cargill will expand its shrimp-feed production capabilities to own and operate the shrimp-feed production facility currently owned by Skyvest subsidiary Empagran, which is located in Guayaquil, Ecuador. The feed plant was built in 2018, currently has a production capacity of 156,000 tonnes and employs more than 200 people.

“Through this joint venture, Cargill will nearly double its production capacity, and we will improve our capacity to serve our customers and partners. We will invest in this facility and expand our offering of shrimp feeds under the Cargill’s Aquaxcel brand to meet increasing demand for feed among our customers,” said Angel Gomez, managing director of Cargill’s aqua nutrition business in northern Latin America.

“Our joint venture with Cargill has been a big success and a driver of growth for both organisations. We have established an excellent working relationship and we are excited to participate in this expansion to increase our production capacity of high-performance feed that will continue supporting the growth of the Ecuadorian shrimp industry,” said Francisco Sola, Naturisa president.

“We are excited that Cargill will bring its operational expertise and its deep knowledge of global supply chains and risk management to run this facility,” said Victor Ernesto Estrada Santistevan, owner of Skyvest. “The Cargill knowhow will improve feed quality, and their willingness to invest in the plant will bring more high-quality feed to the market”.

The transaction, which is subject to regulatory approvals, is expected to close in the coming months.

Desert Shrimp Farms Create Giant Business

Copyright © 2023 China Daily Multimedia Co.
By Zou Shuo in Beijing and Yuan Hui in Hohhot
August 28, 2023

Wang Changgui, a farmer from Ordos, Inner Mongolia autonomous region, began raising whiteleg shrimp, brought over from Ecuador six years ago - but the task was rough going at the outset.

In the beginning, Wang had great difficulty mastering the craft and lost money for several years. But thanks to the help of experts, shrimp farming turned out to be a lucrative source of income for him.

Wang, now 60 years of age, has become a seasoned aquaculture practitioner, and expects to make 800,000 to 900,000 yuan ($110,000 to $123,000) from shrimp farming in saline ponds this year.

He is targeting an annual shrimp output of 25 metric tons, with his product selling for between 50 to 60 yuan per kilogram locally.

Ordos, near the Kubuqi Desert, has a large amount of saline soil, and local farmers usually soak the saline land with Yellow River water to remove the surface salt. The saline water is then discharged through a drainage canal, said Gao Lei, head of aquatic farming at Ordos Hanggin Banner Bureau of Agriculture and Animal Husbandry.

Few plants are able to survive in saline land, Gao said, adding that meanwhile, the high salinity levels in the soil are ideal for pond-based shrimp farming, allowing the banner to start raising whiteleg shrimp in 2015.

Thanks to research conducted by experts, the banner has managed to form its ways of raising shrimp by adjusting salinity and temperature levels, thus allowing yields to more than double.

Last year, the annual production value of the Ordos shrimp reached around 30 million yuan and the incomes of locals have also increased accordingly, Gao added.

Zhu Changbo, a former researcher with the South China Sea Fisheries Research Institute under the Chinese Academy of Fishery Sciences, came to Ordos from Guangzhou, Guangdong province, to help locals improve shrimp breeding techniques.

The key is to make adjustments to the saline water so it corresponds to ideal conditions, said Zhu, who is now an animal physiology professor at Inner Mongolia Agricultural University.

With the maturation of breeding techniques, shrimp farming has been rapidly promoted and developed in Ordos.

Locals have started using saline removed from nearby waterways to raise shrimp, which not only creates a new aquaculture sector, but makes effective use of the heretofore unusable byproduct of local desalination efforts, Zhu said.

He added that this process greatly contributes to the growth of plants and soil fixation, thus aiding in preventing desertification.

The shrimp raised in the salty ponds tastes no different from shrimp harvested from the sea, he said.

"People who are worried about eating seafood due to the Japanese government's decision to dump nuclear-contaminated water into the Pacific Ocean can feel safe with our shrimp, which are raised in places far from the sea," said Zhu.

The shrimp are mainly sold to cities near Ordos, such as Hohhot and Baotou in Inner Mongolia, and Yinchuan in the Ningxia Hui autonomous region, he added.

Gao, Hanggin's aquatic farming director, said they have also been experimenting with using greenhouses to raise the shrimp instead of outdoor ponds.

As Ordos has relatively low temperatures, farmers are only able to harvest mature shrimp once a year. But greenhouses can realize twice-annual yields. Moreover, raising shrimp in a greenhouse with higher temperatures allows for a higher density, resulting in an increased output, Gao said.

However, greenhouses also require more human labor input, he added.

"We hope to make saline water fisheries a good way to increase incomes and prevent desertification, so there will be more 'fishery oases' in salty lands."

To run a commercial shrimp farm, most states require you to purchase an aquaculture permit. You have a variety of options for setting up your shrimp farm.

Includes ponds, giant tanks, swimming pools, and any other water storage facilities.

About 4 thousand kilograms of shrimp can be produced from a pond dug on one acre of land for shrimp farming . Whose price in the open market ranges from Rs 350 to Rs 400 per kg, which is more than the price of fishes. Shrimp farming in one acre of land can yield a net income of up to Rs 5 lakh at a time. Ecuador leads the way in the global shrimp industry

Sustainability

Reading time: 5 min

Banco Pichincha Editorial

February 8, 2022

Ecuadorian shrimp has become a global benchmark and it is no coincidence. This is the result of the effort, resilience and adaptation capacity of aquaculturists as well as the support of entities such as Banco Pichincha that is committed to the development of the agri-food industry.

We are proud to be part of this story of progress and we care about understanding the agricultural industry to offer real and efficient financial solutions. For this we have partnered with the Dutch bank Rabobank, a world leader in food and agriculture financing and sustainability-oriented banking.

“For Banco Pichincha, supporting the country’s agriculture is strategic, due to its economic and social contribution. Knowing the agricultural cycle in depth helps us adapt to the needs of our customers.”

Santiago Bayas
General Manager of Banco Pichincha

Our shrimp in the world

The quality of Ecuadorian shrimp is recognized throughout the world because it meets the most demanding standards of the international market. During the discussion “Shrimp 2022: global perspectives, challenges and opportunities” organized by Banco Pichincha, several national and international experts spoke about the importance of our country in this sector.

Gorjan Nikolik, specialist in shrimp markets and exports at Rabobank, spoke about the importance of this product in the global market.

United States and Latin America

Ecuador dominates exports in the American shrimp market, surpassing Mexico and Brazil. And as expected, the United States is our main client. In fact, we have positioned ourselves in the top 3 of shrimp imports from that country, with a growth of 26%, which surpasses our main competitors; India and Indonesia.

Europa

We are the largest supplier in the European Union and the United Kingdom, especially in the Mediterranean area. Shrimp imports have grown by 18% in the last two years and the main importer of our product is Spain; a country where we lead the market, surpassing Argentina and China.

Asia

We also have an important presence in the Asian continent. In fact, in 2021, 57% of shrimp imports into China came from Ecuador. But we still have an opportunity for growth in other countries such as Japan and South Korea, which in the last year have expanded their operations by 5.5%, but they are markets in which Vietnam and India still predominate.

Five keys to the success of the Ecuadorian shrimp sector

The work of our shrimp industry has been arduous and continuous. Thanks to their efforts, today the sector is experiencing a unique moment of growth and progress. The entrepreneurial spirit of shrimp farmers has been the driving force to be at the top of the world, but we must also mention the competitive advantages that allow us to be leaders in the market.

1. Access to financing oods . Our climate, combined with good tem. These factors allow producers to

3. Innovation

Another key to the leadership of Ecuadorian shrimp in the world has been investment in technology and specialized human capital . Our country is a pioneer in integrating and implementing automatic feeders that use artificial intelligence and big data to manage the balancing portions and analyze the conditions of each pool. And if we talk about food, the shrimp sector has the best experts in aquaculture nutrition in the world .

4. Genetic advances

Ecuadorian shrimp not only has optimal growth thanks to good environmental conditions ; We are also at the forefront of genetic advances . One of the most important is the development of disease-resistant animals or SPR (specific pathogen resistant). With this, we have managed to reduce the use of antibiotics and have healthier shrimp for consumption , which allows us to compete in demanding markets such as Europe.

5. Sustainability

The shrimp sector optimizes the management of natural resources and this also has an impact on the quality of the product. Shrimp entrepreneurs are committed to farming methods in which the volume of animals in each pool is respected to avoid overpopulation. Another important initiative is the reduction of the carbon footprint with the replacement of diesel with electric energy, the optimization of water , responsible waste management and responsible breeding to take care of the mangroves.

Outlook for the shrimp sector

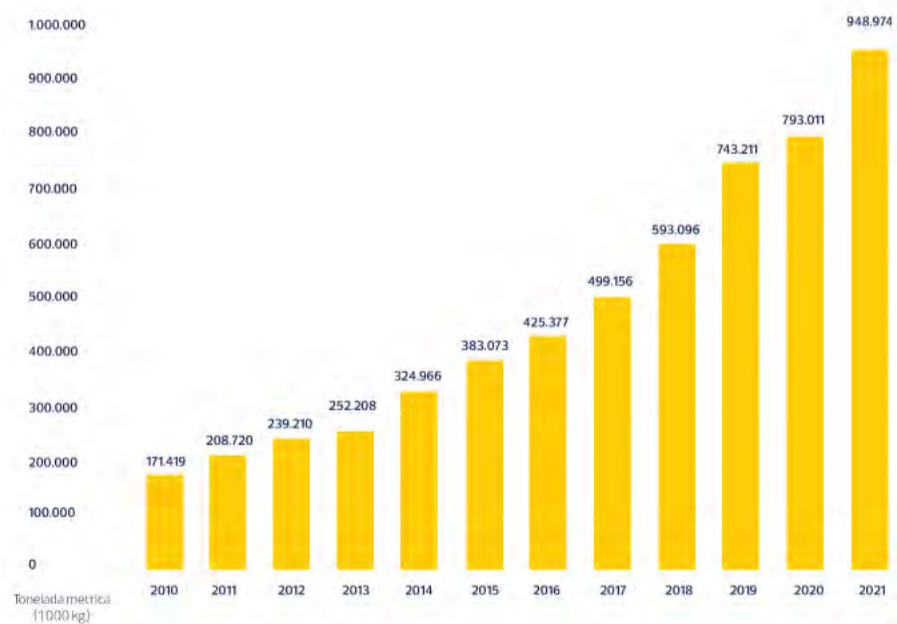

Ecuador has been the fastest growing country in terms of production during 2021, with more than 1 million metric tons of shrimp . In fact, it is estimated that by 2022, we will be world leaders in volume growth with 14%, surpassing countries like China and India.

5 million tons is the estimated growth volume for 2022 in shrimp exports worldwide.

Experts assure that there will be more demand thanks to the diversification of products that the international market demands, such as frozen, whole and even cooked shrimp. Furthermore, the sector is experiencing a moment of expansion due to high prices and a robust and constant supply.

Crecimiento de la producción camaronera en Ecuador

Como banco, queremos continuar apoyando al progreso del país, e ir de la mano de la agroindustria, para mostrarle al mundo que nuestro liderazgo apenas empieza con el sector camaronero.

Ecuador set to hit 1.5 million tonnes of shrimp exports

Ecuador’s meteoric growth in shrimp production shows no sign of slowing down – despite the decline in global shrimp prices – according to one of the sector’s leading analysts.

Speaking at the Global Shrimp Forum earlier this month, Gabriel Luna noted that his homeland was on track to export 900,000 tonnes of shrimp to China alone and likely to export “close to 1.5 million tonnes” in total for the year, following a 30 percent increase in exports compared to 2022 in H1, and an overall increase of 15 percent expected for the full year.

At a time when most shrimp farmers, in particular those in Asia, are making a loss, Luna – who runs Glunashrimp, a company that offers shrimp market advisory services – said that “a large percentage” of Ecuador’s farmers were efficient enough to still be able to make a profit.

Ecuador’s shrimp production has increased 22 times since the turn of the century and, according to Luna, this pattern is likely to continue.”

Share this

According to Luna, despite the terrible market “at these price levels we have certain farmers who are able to make good profits”. And he argued that, while a degree of industry consolidation was likely, many farmers would be able to ride out the storm: noting that they could skip a crop until the price goes above their cost of production threshold.

Ecuador’s shrimp production has increased 22 times since the turn of the century and, according to Luna, this pattern is likely to continue.

He pointed out that while the national average was to harvest two to three tonnes of shrimp per hectare per year, the more intensive farms were able to harvest six tonnes per hectare every three months – in other words 24 tonnes per hectare per year. As more farms adopt such strategies the continued growth of the country’s shrimp sector is only going to continue, he observed.

According to Luna five of the country's biggest companies were stocking as high as 35 shrimp per m². While he conceded that these five needed to partial harvest to prevent exceeding the ponds' carrying capacities he noted that the process of "technification" – ie the installation of automatic feeders and paddlewheels into many farms – mean that there's potential for the farmers to increase the national average stocking density to 20-25 shrimp per m².

Ecuador vs the rest of the world

Ecuador has essentially replaced India as the shrimp export powerhouse – the latter having grown by an impressive CAGR of 19 percent between 2012 to 2019. Since that peak, however, issues with disease have caused a significant decline in the subcontinent. Although its export levels in the first six months of this year were only 1 percent below H1 2022, the 30 percent drop in broodstock imports in that same timeframe is likely to translate into a dramatic decline of production in H2, with experts predicting the country to export in the region of 600,000 tonnes of shrimp in total this year.

As Sree Atluri of Devi Seafoods explained, Indian farmers are reducing stocking densities having been hit by poor prices. He predicted a decline in production of at least 15 percent in the last two quarters of the year.

Devi explained that stocking densities have fallen from 35-45 shrimp per m² to 15-25 per m². He added that farmers in India have been cutting down power and feed costs, trying to increase size of their shrimp or change to monodon.

Although there was a small uptick in pricing in August, which is motivating farmers to increase stocking densities, Atluri expects this to be unable to reverse the decline.

On a more positive note, he pointed out that there has been a marked increase in monodon production, with Asian markets absorbing this uptick and overall production of the species is expected to double compared to 2022.

Vietnam and Indonesia

Meanwhile, session chair Willem van der Pijl explained that – judging by imports from Vietnam’s main markets – the country’s shrimp exports fell by 31 percent in Q1 and 39 percent in Q2. According to van der Pijl, an overall decrease of 25 percent is expected for 2023, which would equate to total shrimp exports of 284,000 tonnes.

Liem Nguyen, from Minh Phu, backed up van der Pijl’s forecast, noting that the company – the country’s largest seafood firm – had been processing 25 percent fewer shrimp than last year. However he added that they are anticipating an increase of demand from restaurants and an increase in value-added shrimp.

Van der Pijl then moved on to Indonesia, using data sourced from BKIAM. This pointed to a 19 percent reduction in exports in H1, and a 13 percent reduction expected overall, to 202,000 tonnes. Prices were down, due to the country’s overreliance on the US market.

Aris Utama, from Bumi Menara Internusa, backed up the data: “The decline is real and we feel it,” he lamented.

As Utama pointed out, the country’s focus on intensive farming models generates high production costs, which have been exacerbated by disease issues.

When the $3.50 per kg cost of production is exceeded then big farmers will hold off on their stocking regimes, he observed.

While Utama thinks that “we’ve hit that floor already” in terms of prices, he expects that a bigger crop in Q4 is still highly possible. He also added that it was still possible for farmers to have profit margins as high as 20-30 percent at a $3.50 kg production cost, as they typically sell for $4.50 per kg to processors. Early harvesting was another strategy he pointed to as having potential, noting that farmers can still make money from shrimp as long as they reached 10 g prior to harvest.

“ Farmers are still making money from shrimp compared to other businesses they can invest in, as long as they are efficient”

Share this

Farmers are still making money from shrimp compared to other businesses they can invest in, as long as they are efficient, he argued.

While Ecuador's increase in production is expected to balance out overall global shrimp production for the year, counteracting imports from Asia. However, in the long-term, those present in the panel discussion were all in agreement that it is in all shrimp producers' interest to grow the global market.

In the words of Travis Larkin, CEO and owner of Seafood Exchange: "We need greater demand throughout the world".

CNA: $1bn losses threaten Ecuador shrimp sector's financial stability

The Ecuadorian shrimp sector is facing a severe market crisis, with prices reaching very alarming levels -- even lower than those recorded in 2020 when the COVID-19 pandemic began -- and costs increasing nonstop

The Ecuadorian shrimp sector is facing a severe market crisis with prices reaching very alarming levels even lower than those recorded in 2020 when the COVID-19 pandemic began, Ecuador's national chamber of aquaculture, or the CNA, said in a statement.

The CNA shared its "deep concern" over this "unprecedented issue" with a drop in international prices, mainly due to a decline in consumption in China and other relevant markets, "seriously affecting the entire production chain, which is struggling to cover its production costs."

"In the past 15 months, the export price has decreased by $0.70 per pound of shrimp, significantly impacting the industry's income," the CNA said.

Furthermore, the sector has faced challenges in terms of competitiveness due to the constant increase in operating costs, such as fuel, labor, insecurity, and raw materials. "In the past year alone,
